AUSTRALIAN MUSIC EDUCATORS NATIONAL CONFERENCE

THURSDAY 10 FEBRUARY – SATURDAY 12 FEBRUARY 2005

Three days of intensive masterclasses, workshops and concerts for music educators, performers and students of all ages.

ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

The Australian Music Educators National Conference (AMENC) is an initiative of The Australian National University and the ACT Department of Education and Training. The aims of the AMENC are:

- Facilitate communication between local, national and international music educators
- Develop new teaching techniques
- Examine, analyse and appraise new pedagogical material relating to music and music education and
- Disseminate information to school music educators and administrators and others interested in music education to better pursue their profession.

This conference provides the opportunity to bring together primary, secondary and tertiary instrumental, choral and classroom music teachers, school band and orchestra specialists, international clinicians and guest speakers, university music researchers, military musicians, conductors, composers and arrangers.

Participants will enjoy three days of intensive masterclasses and workshops and will have access to information from trade displays and experience performances by some of the leading ensembles in the ACT and throughout Australia.

PRESENTERS AND MASTER TALKS

The opening address for the inaugural AMENC will be given by Richard Gill, renowned Artistic Director of the Sydney Symphony's Education Program, followed by master talks from:

- Sam Leong, Director, Music Education Studies, University of Western Australian and Chair, ASME, Western Australia
- James M Bankhead, Chairman of Music, California State University
- Keith Horsfall, UK National Association of Youth Orchestra, Manager, Community Arts Team
- and many others...

Convenors – Mr John Agnew, Principal ACT Instrumental Music Program, ACT Department of Education and Training and Mr Gary France, Head of School, Faculty of Arts, School of Music.

Workshops will be presented in aural, arranging, concert band, choir, conducting, ICT in the classroom, improvisation, instrumental, jazz, music and health, strings and world music.
